HOW TO USE REJECT DECISIONS

You'll have two reject options when using the Article Transfer Service
These are for editors only and are not visible to authors receiving rejection decisions

REJECT UNSUITABLE

Use this for all articles that do not meet the editorial threshold of your journal or are out of scope. Unless your initial review has already identified concerns about the soundness of a paper, this will be the default reject decision

When you select Reject Unsuitable, authors of these papers may be contacted with a selection of suitable alternative Taylor & Francis journals to consider

REJECT UNSOUND

Use this for unsound articles only, where the article in question should NOT be published because you have concerns over the method, research question or conclusions

THE BENEFITS

Helps authors find the right home for their research

Time-saving: no need for authors to enter all the previous submission details

Open access choice for maximum reach and impact

Every article is evaluated by the receiving journal ensuring quality, validity, and relevance

Research is published faster so it can be accessed more rapidly

Improves the experience of submitting to your journal
